

Mary Margaret Kerr, Ed.D.
Professor, Applied Developmental Psychology and Psychiatry
University of Pittsburgh

Mary Margaret Kerr is Professor of Applied Developmental Psychology and Psychiatry at the University of Pittsburgh.

Certified as a school superintendent, Dr. Kerr served Pittsburgh City Schools for several years as Director of Pupil Services, where she administered school security.

Dr. Kerr has responded to over 1000 school-related crises, including the TWA 800 crash and school shootings. She designed the Pittsburgh Schools crisis team model, one of the first in the country, and has consulted with many schools on crisis responding and school safety. Dr. Kerr served as an expert panelist for the US Government report, A Guide for Intermediate and Long-term Mental Health Services after School-Related Violent Events and served as an education consultant to the U.S. Department of Justice and to many state and local educational agencies. In 2009, she authored School Crisis Prevention and Intervention, a text by Prentice-Hall.
